

IN CASUALTY LIST
105 Names Reported by Pershing—Roll of 23 From Marine Corps
28 SLAIN IN BATTLE

By the Associated Press

Washington, July 23.—The army casualty list today shows 105 names, divided as follows: Killed in action, 24; died of wounds, 3; died of disease, 5; died of accident and other causes, 8; wounded severely, 67; missing, 1.

The marine corps casualty list shows twenty-three names, divided as follows: Killed in action, 4; died of wounds, 3; wounded severely, 13; missing, 1.

The army list follows:

KILLED IN ACTION
Sergeant
OILBERT, CARL L., Niles, Va.

CORPORALS
ORIB, STEPHEN P., Chicago.
KOLAR, GUSTAVE, Chicago.

Privates
ARRAWAY, HARRY, New York city.
BEARD, CLIFFORD A., St. Louis.
BUCHANAN, HENRIE R., Los Angeles, Wash.
CHEN, LESLIE D., Bideville, Ind.
CRUMB, HOMER, Knebel, Ark.
ELLIS, JAMES P., Eldorado, Tex.
FRANKEL, CHARLES, New York city.
LAMBERT, JOHN, Holyoke, Mass.
MUNDIE, JOHN D., North Tonawanda, N. Y.

Private
MURPHY, JOHN J., Allandale, Ireland.
ORPSTEAD, CARL A., Spring Grove, Wis.

Private
O'HEIN, JOSEPH P., Lockport, N. Y.
FELT, JOSEPH, Owatonna, Minn.
SCHMIDT, SAMUEL, Brooklyn, N. Y.
RHOENMANN, JOHN W., Toronto, Ont.
FELT, JOHN, Annapolis, Md.
SMULY, ZYSLIK, PICTER, Hampton, Mass.

Private
FRANTON, ARCHIBALD L., Waterbury, Conn.
STENGL, ALFRED, College Point, N. Y.
SWIRSKY, LEON, New York city.

Private
KESNART, LEON, Spring City, Pa.

DIED OF WOUNDS
Private
DE MODICA, DOMENICA, Boston, Mass.
BOYD, JOHN E., Pony, Mont.
STANTON, GUY M., Millbrook, Mich.

DIED OF DISEASE
Private
FARRIS, WILLIAM A., Tuscaloosa, Ala.
LEWIS, HARRY A., Fullerton, Neb.
SCHMIDT, HENRY, Wilton, Minn.
BICKELDER, JOHN, Staruk, Mich.

Private
BIXBY, CLEAR L., Glasgow, Mont.

DIED FROM ACCIDENT AND OTHER CAUSES
Master Engineer
URBACH, ALBERT O., Livingston, Mont.

Sergeant
McGAREN, PATRICK J., New York.

Private
JOHNSON, SILVESTER, Cadville, N. Y.

Private
KIRKZIE, WILLEN, Jersey City, N. J.
PATRICK, THOMAS, Newark, N. J.

Private
BILSBORROW, GEORGE A., Manlewood, Mo.

Private
BEAD, FRANCIS K., Baltimore, Md.

Private
RINALDO, THOMAS, Brooklyn.
SWENSON, CHARLES J., New York city.

Private
OBERLANDER, EDWARD, Brooklyn.

Private
BERSHMAN, MICHAEL M., Brooklyn.
HERMANSER, FRANK P., St. Louis.
LAMPLEY, JAMES T., Towson, Tenn.
LEINFELDER, GEORGE, Brooklyn.

Private
CARRATA, JAMES J., Brooklyn.
ANDRUS, EDWARD, Jamaica Plain, Mass.
OLBRICH, JOHN, Holland, Mich.
GREIF, HOWARD K., New York city.
GRIFITHS, JOHN L., Glendale, N. Y.
MCCORMICK, JAMES T., Towson, Tenn.
WILSON, RALPH, New York city.

Private
BECK, CECIL J., Springfield, Wash.
BERMAN, EDWARD, Spring Valley, N. Y.
KROBOSKY, HENRY, Shenandoah, Pa.
BOCCA, CHARLES, Gary, Ind.
CANNON, JOHN, Homestead, Pa.
CLARK, HENRY, South West, N. Y.
COOK, HUGH D., La Junta, Colo.
CRAPT, SHERMAN L., Holland, Pa.
DALEY, PAUL, New York city.
DILGARD, HENRY C., Gettysville, N. Y.
DONAHUE, JOSEPH M., Buffalo, N. Y.
FRANK, FRANCIS, Buffalo, N. Y.
EILLENBER, MARK, New York city.
FEE, PATRICK, Brooklyn.

Private
FLETCHER, LAWRENCE, New York city.
FOOTE, HARPER D., Birmingham, N. Y.
FRANER, JAMES G., Pine City, N. Y.
FRYLAND, WILLIAM S., Salsaman, N. Y.
GERMAN, CHRISTOPHER, Corona, N. Y.
GOLDMAN, FRANK J., Buffalo.
HUBBARD, EDWARD, New York city.
GROTT, EDWARD, 3107 Aldrich avenue, Minneapolis.

Private
HARTLE, FRED, Brooklyn.
HERMAN, JOHN I., Olney, Ill.
KALIL, SAID, New York city.
KELLEY, HENRY S., Haddam, Conn.
KRENGEL, IRVING H., Elm, N. Y.
KRIEGER, FRANK, Batavia, Pa.
LEARY, FRANK J., 92 Fillmore ave., Buffalo.

Private
LEIBERLACH, GEORGE D., Mineola, Kan.
MCCANN, GEORGE, East Boston.
MOORE, JOHN H., New York city.
MURPHY, RICHARD J., Brooklyn.
MUTTL, VINCENT, New York city.
NEWMAN, FREDERICK C., New York city.
NEWTON, JAMES M., Woodlawn, N. Y.
NOON, WILLIAM R., Freeport, N. Y.
NOTFIELD, JOHN, Newark, Conn.
PENNARIO, JOHN D., Buffalo.
PUTRICK, WALTER, New York city.
QUICK, LEWIS, Silver Springs, N. Y.
SKULLER, WILLIAM, Cincinnati.

Private
BOLLOW, IRVING, New York.
WALLACE, PERCY, New York.
WARREN, CASSIUS M., Danville, N. Y.
WHEENBURG, HENRY, Newell, Ia.
WILDER, THOMAS, New York city.
WHITE, ARTHUR J., Lima, N. Y.
WILLIAMS, ARTHUR D., Holla, N. D.
WILLIAMS, ISIDORE G., Rockville, N. D.
WOLFF, JULIUS, Elmhurst, N. Y.

MISSING IN ACTION
Private
STRAUSS, EDWARD, New York city.

MARINE LIST
Marine list follows:

KILLED IN ACTION
Private
CHAPMAN, WYATT M., Anacostia, D. C.
LOWRY, WILLIAM W., Cleveland, O.
CARLSON, FRANK M., Sycamore, Ill.
STALEY, LLOYD A., Springfield, Ill.

DIED OF WOUNDS RECEIVED IN ACTION
First Lieutenant
BEMORE, ARTHUR T., Washington, D. C.

Private
MORGAN, JAMES D., Granby, Mass.
STIRLING, RUGH A., 4403 Osage avenue, Philadelphia, Pa.

SEVERELY WOUNDED IN ACTION
BENEDICT, MARSHALL J., Hartford, Conn.
DORRIS, GEORGE J., Harrison, O.

Private
ARBUCKLE, IRA O., Fulton, Mo.
BENCKERT, CHARLES A., 606 Twenty-third street, Easton, Pa.
BLOOMER, ERNEST, Rock Springs, Wyo.
BRANDON, EUGENE H., Prairie, Minn.
CARDIN, JOHN E., Sandusky, Mich.
CONRAD, LYNN E., Sacramento, Cal.
LUDERS, HARRY L., Denver, Colo.
NICHOLS, JOSEPH H., 297 North Sixty-third street, Philadelphia.
NICHOLS, JOSEPH H., 297 North Sixty-third street, Philadelphia.
PRICE, GARRISON H., Hiltons, Va.
ROTH, JOSE, Ludlow, Ky.
SANDERSON, PAUL H., Howling Green, Mo.
STAHL, JOHN J., Freeport, Pa.

PREVIOUSLY REPORTED KILLED IN ACTION
Private
SIMPSON, ROY H., 110 East Duval street, Philadelphia.

Says Vare O. K.'d Hire of Gunmen

Continued from Page One
with "Battling Abe" Cohen, 525 De Lancey street, on the stand.

Cohen's cross-examination by Attorney Gray, chief counsel for Isaac Deutch and his six confederates, developed a few hints about "status" games and crap layouts.

The seven defendants displayed a deep interest as Maloney took a seat on the stand.

Maloney admitted he was under an indictment and that he had not been promised immunity as a concession for his testimony.

The witness said he had known Isaac Deutch for fifteen years.

Asked to Do Some Work
The contending Fifth Ward leader, Maloney, asked him to do some work for him in that ward.

Maloney referred him to a man named Lipschutz, in New York City.

Maloney guaranteed payment for the importation of eight "detectives" on primary election last September.

Deutch had arranged with Maloney for the eighteen men who were to wear ribbons so that the Fifth Ward police would know them.

Congressman William S. Vare and Finley, executive manager of the Republican City Committee, were present in the Vare office in the Lincoln Building when Maloney called in reference to paying for the men to be imported.

Congressman Vare assured him, Maloney testified, that Deutch "had ample money to pay all bills."

The Congressman did not seem inclined to say any more, the witness said, and he started to leave the office.

Finley followed him to the door. "Deutch has a hundred of money plenty of money. You will be paid," Finley assured him, Maloney asserted.

Brought Thru Here
As Maloney told of bringing the Frog Hollow thugs into the Fifth Ward, the jury, Bennett stated directly ahead at the witness.

Four of the police defendants leaned forward on their benches, their eyes occupying inside the courtroom rail.

Wirtschaft alone displayed no unusual interest, but continued chewing gum.

Counsel for the defense asked the witness if Maloney was his right name. The witness said it was and denied that he had ever seen him.

The court would not permit Gray to examine Maloney about his domestic life. The court also blocked an attempt to introduce the call of money placed by the famous Salter case.

Gray probed into Maloney's political career.

Maloney admitted he had been political leader of the Fifth Ward from 1900 to 1905, when a reform wave upset his rule.

In 1905, Maloney said, he engaged in detective work for William J. Burns in New York, continuing with Burns until 1910.

He then established a detective agency in New York. The witness lived in Landowne at that time, he said. He now lives at 772 St. Nicholas avenue, New York city.

Didn't Try to Get Vares
Maloney, when his cross-examination was resumed at the afternoon session, said "never started out to get the Mayor or the Vares."

Gray pressed the witness for his reason in not depositing in bank the $1000 note he received in a special delivery envelope.

Maloney said he had no reason for depositing it, but gave it to Persch to be changed into smaller notes.

Frankly, Mr. Maloney, weren't you trying to frame Finley by the giving the note to Persch as a corroborative witness?" was Gray's thrust.

"If I was trying to, Magistrate Persch would be the last person in the world I would use," was the reply.

"Does that mean you would not trust him with a thousand dollars?" Maloney said when he got the bank note back from Persch through the Red Assistant District Attorney Gordon, Redmond, an attorney in former Judge Gordon's office, and two trust company representatives were present and saw him receive the note.

Gray made repeated thrusts in an attempt to prove that Maloney used the thousand dollar bill to make evidence damaging to Finley. The witness parried the thrusts, meeting each insinuation of collusion with a bland denial.

Denies Arrest in Canada
Maloney denied that he had been arrested in Canada for bribery, had jumped bail and was now a fugitive from justice. He admitted he was in Canada in 1912, posing as a business man named Sampson.

Maloney denied Magistrate George A. Persch had been an operative for the O'Farrell Agency. He said all the agency cases were sent to Persch as a Magistrate. He denied Persch was known as "Operative P5." The principal business now of the O'Farrell Agency is protecting munition factories, not furnishing strike-breakers, as imputed by Mr. Gray.

Counsel for defense dragged Harry Thaw's name into the case. Maloney admitted the Thaw family were clients of the agency, which had been engaged by District Attorney Swann, of New York, to find Thaw when Harry fled after beating Frederick G. Coe.

Maloney said he found Thaw by accident in a Philadelphia hotel. The Court interposed.

"I want to show what this man concealed Thaw," explained Gray.

"I don't care whether he hid him or buried him," commented the Court.

Gray entered a general objection, which was admitted to the records. He again attempted to refer to the Thaw case, but the Court blocked him. "We are not going to try sixteen cases at once," ruled Judge Haus.

Maloney admitted he had been arrested in connection with the present case, intimating that the police tried to jail him because he was a witness in prosecution. Maloney denied he had discussed the Fifth Ward situation with former Judge James Gray Gordon and James S. Benn, city editor of a Philadelphia newspaper. A minute later he admitted that Benn had talked with him about the Fifth Ward before the September primaries. Magistrate Persch was present at the conversation, which occurred on the street. The witness indignantly denied Gray's insinuation that Maloney had "framed" Persch for the purpose of "framing" Vare men there.

Payment for Imported Men
Maloney told how Michael O'Sullivan brought eighteen "good strong husky men" from New York city for the primary election. The bulk of his direct testimony was concerned with the alleged payment of $1000 for the services of the imported men. He described a visit to Finley at a Philadelphia hotel where Finley, he said, inquired about the "murder down in the Fifth Ward."

The Congressman did not seem inclined to say any more, the witness said, and he started to leave the office.

Finley followed him to the door. "Deutch has a hundred of money plenty of money. You will be paid," Finley assured him, Maloney asserted.

Brought Thru Here
As Maloney told of bringing the Frog Hollow thugs into the Fifth Ward, the jury, Bennett stated directly ahead at the witness.

Four of the police defendants leaned forward on their benches, their eyes occupying inside the courtroom rail.

Wirtschaft alone displayed no unusual interest, but continued chewing gum.

Counsel for the defense asked the witness if Maloney was his right name. The witness said it was and denied that he had ever seen him.

The court would not permit Gray to examine Maloney about his domestic life. The court also blocked an attempt to introduce the call of money placed by the famous Salter case.

Gray probed into Maloney's political career.

Maloney admitted he had been political leader of the Fifth Ward from 1900 to 1905, when a reform wave upset his rule.

In 1905, Maloney said, he engaged in detective work for William J. Burns in New York, continuing with Burns until 1910.

He then established a detective agency in New York. The witness lived in Landowne at that time, he said. He now lives at 772 St. Nicholas avenue, New York city.

Didn't Try to Get Vares
Maloney, when his cross-examination was resumed at the afternoon session, said "never started out to get the Mayor or the Vares."

Gray pressed the witness for his reason in not depositing in bank the $1000 note he received in a special delivery envelope.

Maloney said he had no reason for depositing it, but gave it to Persch to be changed into smaller notes.

Frankly, Mr. Maloney, weren't you trying to frame Finley by the giving the note to Persch as a corroborative witness?" was Gray's thrust.

"If I was trying to, Magistrate Persch would be the last person in the world I would use," was the reply.

"Does that mean you would not trust him with a thousand dollars?" Maloney said when he got the bank note back from Persch through the Red Assistant District Attorney Gordon, Redmond, an attorney in former Judge Gordon's office, and two trust company representatives were present and saw him receive the note.

Gray made repeated thrusts in an attempt to prove that Maloney used the thousand dollar bill to make evidence damaging to Finley. The witness parried the thrusts, meeting each insinuation of collusion with a bland denial.

Denies Arrest in Canada
Maloney denied that he had been arrested in Canada for bribery, had jumped bail and was now a fugitive from justice. He admitted he was in Canada in 1912, posing as a business man named Sampson.

Maloney denied Magistrate George A. Persch had been an operative for the O'Farrell Agency. He said all the agency cases were sent to Persch as a Magistrate. He denied Persch was known as "Operative P5." The principal business now of the O'Farrell Agency is protecting munition factories, not furnishing strike-breakers, as imputed by Mr. Gray.

Counsel for defense dragged Harry Thaw's name into the case. Maloney admitted the Thaw family were clients of the agency, which had been engaged by District Attorney Swann, of New York, to find Thaw when Harry fled after beating Frederick G. Coe.

Maloney said he found Thaw by accident in a Philadelphia hotel. The Court interposed.

"I want to show what this man concealed Thaw," explained Gray.

"I don't care whether he hid him or buried him," commented the Court.

Gray entered a general objection, which was admitted to the records. He again attempted to refer to the Thaw case, but the Court blocked him. "We are not going to try sixteen cases at once," ruled Judge Haus.

Maloney admitted he had been arrested in connection with the present case, intimating that the police tried to jail him because he was a witness in prosecution. Maloney denied he had discussed the Fifth Ward situation with former Judge James Gray Gordon and James S. Benn, city editor of a Philadelphia newspaper. A minute later he admitted that Benn had talked with him about the Fifth Ward before the September primaries. Magistrate Persch was present at the conversation, which occurred on the street. The witness indignantly denied Gray's insinuation that Maloney had "framed" Persch for the purpose of "framing" Vare men there.

Payment for Imported Men
Maloney told how Michael O'Sullivan brought eighteen "good strong husky men" from New York city for the primary election. The bulk of his direct testimony was concerned with the alleged payment of $1000 for the services of the imported men. He described a visit to Finley at a Philadelphia hotel where Finley, he said, inquired about the "murder down in the Fifth Ward."

The Congressman did not seem inclined to say any more, the witness said, and he started to leave the office.

Finley followed him to the door. "Deutch has a hundred of money plenty of money. You will be paid," Finley assured him, Maloney asserted.

Brought Thru Here
As Maloney told of bringing the Frog Hollow thugs into the Fifth Ward, the jury, Bennett stated directly ahead at the witness.

Four of the police defendants leaned forward on their benches, their eyes occupying inside the courtroom rail.

Wirtschaft alone displayed no unusual interest, but continued chewing gum.

Counsel for the defense asked the witness if Maloney was his right name. The witness said it was and denied that he had ever seen him.

The court would not permit Gray to examine Maloney about his domestic life. The court also blocked an attempt to introduce the call of money placed by the famous Salter case.

Gray probed into Maloney's political career.

Maloney admitted he had been political leader of the Fifth Ward from 1900 to 1905, when a reform wave upset his rule.

In 1905, Maloney said, he engaged in detective work for William J. Burns in New York, continuing with Burns until 1910.

He then established a detective agency in New York. The witness lived in Landowne at that time, he said. He now lives at 772 St. Nicholas avenue, New York city.

Didn't Try to Get Vares
Maloney, when his cross-examination was resumed at the afternoon session, said "never started out to get the Mayor or the Vares."

Gray pressed the witness for his reason in not depositing in bank the $1000 note he received in a special delivery envelope.

Maloney said he had no reason for depositing it, but gave it to Persch to be changed into smaller notes.

Frankly, Mr. Maloney, weren't you trying to frame Finley by the giving the note to Persch as a corroborative witness?" was Gray's thrust.

"If I was trying to, Magistrate Persch would be the last person in the world I would use," was the reply.

"Does that mean you would not trust him with a thousand dollars?" Maloney said when he got the bank note back from Persch through the Red Assistant District Attorney Gordon, Redmond, an attorney in former Judge Gordon's office, and two trust company representatives were present and saw him receive the note.

Gray made repeated thrusts in an attempt to prove that Maloney used the thousand dollar bill to make evidence damaging to Finley. The witness parried the thrusts, meeting each insinuation of collusion with a bland denial.

Denies Arrest in Canada
Maloney denied that he had been arrested in Canada for bribery, had jumped bail and was now a fugitive from justice. He admitted he was in Canada in 1912, posing as a business man named Sampson.

Maloney denied Magistrate George A. Persch had been an operative for the O'Farrell Agency. He said all the agency cases were sent to Persch as a Magistrate. He denied Persch was known as "Operative P5." The principal business now of the O'Farrell Agency is protecting munition factories, not furnishing strike-breakers, as imputed by Mr. Gray.

Counsel for defense dragged Harry Thaw's name into the case. Maloney admitted the Thaw family were clients of the agency, which had been engaged by District Attorney Swann, of New York, to find Thaw when Harry fled after beating Frederick G. Coe.

Maloney said he found Thaw by accident in a Philadelphia hotel. The Court interposed.

"I want to show what this man concealed Thaw," explained Gray.

"I don't care whether he hid him or buried him," commented the Court.

Gray entered a general objection, which was admitted to the records. He again attempted to refer to the Thaw case, but the Court blocked him. "We are not going to try sixteen cases at once," ruled Judge Haus.

Maloney admitted he had been arrested in connection with the present case, intimating that the police tried to jail him because he was a witness in prosecution. Maloney denied he had discussed the Fifth Ward situation with former Judge James Gray Gordon and James S. Benn, city editor of a Philadelphia newspaper. A minute later he admitted that Benn had talked with him about the Fifth Ward before the September primaries. Magistrate Persch was present at the conversation, which occurred on the street. The witness indignantly denied Gray's insinuation that Maloney had "framed" Persch for the purpose of "framing" Vare men there.

Payment for Imported Men
Maloney told how Michael O'Sullivan brought eighteen "good strong husky men" from New York city for the primary election. The bulk of his direct testimony was concerned with the alleged payment of $1000 for the services of the imported men. He described a visit to Finley at a Philadelphia hotel where Finley, he said, inquired about the "murder down in the Fifth Ward."

The Congressman did not seem inclined to say any more, the witness said, and he started to leave the office.

Finley followed him to the door. "Deutch has a hundred of money plenty of money. You will be paid," Finley assured him, Maloney asserted.

Brought Thru Here
As Maloney told of bringing the Frog Hollow thugs into the Fifth Ward, the jury, Bennett stated directly ahead at the witness.

Four of the police defendants leaned forward on their benches, their eyes occupying inside the courtroom rail.

Wirtschaft alone displayed no unusual interest, but continued chewing gum.

Counsel for the defense asked the witness if Maloney was his right name. The witness said it was and denied that he had ever seen him.

The court would not permit Gray to examine Maloney about his domestic life. The court also blocked an attempt to introduce the call of money placed by the famous Salter case.

Gray probed into Maloney's political career.

Maloney admitted he had been political leader of the Fifth Ward from 1900 to 1905, when a reform wave upset his rule.

In 1905, Maloney said, he engaged in detective work for William J. Burns in New York, continuing with Burns until 1910.

He then established a detective agency in New York. The witness lived in Landowne at that time, he said. He now lives at 772 St. Nicholas avenue, New York city.

Didn't Try to Get Vares
Maloney, when his cross-examination was resumed at the afternoon session, said "never started out to get the Mayor or the Vares."

Gray pressed the witness for his reason in not depositing in bank the $1000 note he received in a special delivery envelope.

Maloney said he had no reason for depositing it, but gave it to Persch to be changed into smaller notes.

Frankly, Mr. Maloney, weren't you trying to frame Finley by the giving the note to Persch as a corroborative witness?" was Gray's thrust.

"If I was trying to, Magistrate Persch would be the last person in the world I would use," was the reply.

"Does that mean you would not trust him with a thousand dollars?" Maloney said when he got the bank note back from Persch through the Red Assistant District Attorney Gordon, Redmond, an attorney in former Judge Gordon's office, and two trust company representatives were present and saw him receive the note.

Gray made repeated thrusts in an attempt to prove that Maloney used the thousand dollar bill to make evidence damaging to Finley. The witness parried the thrusts, meeting each insinuation of collusion with a bland denial.

Denies Arrest in Canada
Maloney denied that he had been arrested in Canada for bribery, had jumped bail and was now a fugitive from justice. He admitted he was in Canada in 1912, posing as a business man named Sampson.

Maloney denied Magistrate George A. Persch had been an operative for the O'Farrell Agency. He said all the agency cases were sent to Persch as a Magistrate. He denied Persch was known as "Operative P5." The principal business now of the O'Farrell Agency is protecting munition factories, not furnishing strike-breakers, as imputed by Mr. Gray.

Counsel for defense dragged Harry Thaw's name into the case. Maloney admitted the Thaw family were clients of the agency, which had been engaged by District Attorney Swann, of New York, to find Thaw when Harry fled after beating Frederick G. Coe.

Maloney said he found Thaw by accident in a Philadelphia hotel. The Court interposed.

"I want to show what this man concealed Thaw," explained Gray.

"I don't care whether he hid him or buried him," commented the Court.

Gray entered a general objection, which was admitted to the records. He again attempted to refer to the Thaw case, but the Court blocked him. "We are not going to try sixteen cases at once," ruled Judge Haus.

Maloney admitted he had been arrested in connection with the present case, intimating that the police tried to jail him because he was a witness in prosecution. Maloney denied he had discussed the Fifth Ward situation with former Judge James Gray Gordon and James S. Benn, city editor of a Philadelphia newspaper. A minute later he admitted that Benn had talked with him about the Fifth Ward before the September primaries. Magistrate Persch was present at the conversation, which occurred on the street. The witness indignantly denied Gray's insinuation that Maloney had "framed" Persch for the purpose of "framing" Vare men there.

Payment for Imported Men
Maloney told how Michael O'Sullivan brought eighteen "good strong husky men" from New York city for the primary election. The bulk of his direct testimony was concerned with the alleged payment of $1000 for the services of the imported men. He described a visit to Finley at a Philadelphia hotel where Finley, he said, inquired about the "murder down in the Fifth Ward."

The Congressman did not seem inclined to say any more, the witness